Have you been a witness to or been the target of negative interpersonal situations at work?

Personal exchanges at work should be positive, but too often we see negative interpersonal dynamics in the workplace as well. These are characterized as bullying, interpersonal conflict, and social undermining. Join Dr. Clair Kueny for an insightful presentation on how to identify these negative behaviors, as well as an overview of research on the impacts these negative exchanges have on employees (and by extension, the organization), and evidence-based guidance on how employees, leaders, and organizations can address and reduce these behaviors at work.

The Digital Lunch and Learn series is brought to you by Missouri S&T Global Learning, which extends learning and training opportunities beyond the traditional classroom.
