Do you ever wonder where new infectious diseases originate, how they spread, and how you can protect yourself and others? Dr. Dave Westenberg explores the concept of One Health, which addresses the interconnection between people, animals, plants, and their shared environment when addressing global health. This will be an interactive and engaging presentation that peeks into society response to global diseases – past, present and future.